The Distinction BETWEEN THE REGULAR EDITION and the TOWN and COUNTY EDITION OF THE AMERICAN CITY

In order to serve more effectively the interests of its subscribers, both in the large cities and in the small towns and villages, THE AMERICAN CITY began in September, 1914, the publication of two editions each month.

Both editions contain the same number of pages of reading matter. In the regular edition the first 32 pages comprise articles of interest primarily to the larger municipalities; while in the remaining pages it is the aim to include articles of interest to municipalities of any size. In the Town and County Edition the first 32 pages are of value primarily to municipal officials or civic workers in places of less than 5,000 inhabitants, or to those interested in county government and county improvements. The remaining pages are identical with the corresponding pages of the regular edition.

The subscription price of either edition is $2 per annum. A subscriber for either edition may have his name transferred to the other edition at any time without extra cost. Subscribers in the United States desirous of receiving both editions can obtain them at a combination rate of $3 per annum.
